

All-Star Cast for "Rigoletto" at the Opera

Caruso, Tetrazzini, Renard, Louise Homer and Rothier in a Memorable Performance of Verdi's Opera—Hundreds Are Turned Away.

BY SYLVESTER RAWLING.

"Rigoletto" was presented at the Metropolitan Opera House last night with what in the days of the consulship of Mr. Gray would have been called, an all-star cast. The performance, which was outside the subscription, was at regular prices and it attracted an audience that numbered the capacity of the house and turned hundreds away. When the last person the police permitted to enter the Broadway gates was passed in, there were still waiting two disappointed lines of people seeking admission that stretched around both corners of the block.

Caruso returned to his former familiar portrayal of the Duke, which he presented with imitable ease and grace and sang superbly. Mme. Tetrazzini was Gilda, a part in which since the retirement of Marcella Sembrich (without prejudice to Felice Lyne, whom we have not yet heard) she has only one rival—Nellie Melba. The title part was taken by Maurice Renaud, whose characterization of the Jester is unrivaled. Louise Homer lent her lovely voice and her spirited interpretation to Maddalena, and Leon Rothier was an effective Sparafucile. For the rest, the cast included Marie Matfield, Helen Mapleton, Emma Hornigold, Paolo Ananian, Herold Begue, Angelo Badia and Vincenzo Reschiglian, and an effective chorus and ballet. Suriani conducting. Of course Caruso's "Donna e mossa," Tetrazzini's "Caro nome" and the famous quartet evoked especial enthusiasm, but the whole performance was punctuated by applause that was well deserved. It was a gala night.

SYMPHONY SOCIETY CONCERT IN MEMORY OF S. S. SANFORD. Walter Damrosch, at Carnegie Hall last night, conducted a concert by the Symphony Society in memory of Samuel S. Sanford, formerly its president. The purpose was to raise funds to endow a hospital bed for the use of members of the orchestra. The soloist was Josef Hofmann, who took part in the Rubinstein piano concerto in D minor with all his skill and grace and charm. The other numbers were Goldmark's "Sakuntala" overture, the adagio from Elgar's first symphony, and the finale from Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade." The orchestra was on its mettle and it gave the large audience a treat which was acknowledged by generous applause.

LHEVINNE, IN PIANO RECITAL, GIVES GENEROUS MEASURE. Josef Lhevinne gave a piano recital at Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon that aroused the enthusiasm of a crowded house. His programme consisted of Beethoven's sonata, op. 101; examples of Mozart and Mendelssohn, a Chopin group and Schumann's "Carnaval." His masterfulness, his facility, his clarity of tone—all were in evidence. One could wish only for something more of warmth and sentiment. Mr. Lhevinne was too generous, as most pianists and other soloists are in giving full measure to their programmes. The Schumann "Carnaval" alone is almost an afternoon's entertainment. The Mozart, Mendelssohn and Chopin numbers added to it surely were enough. The Beethoven sonata could have been spared.

DE CISNEROS BACK FROM HER AUSTRALIAN TOUR.

The Countess de Cisneros, formerly Eleanor Broadfoot, of Brooklyn, a member of the Metropolitan Opera House Company and later the leading contralto at Mr. Hammerstein's Manhattan Opera House, has recently rejoined Mr. Dippel's Chicago-Philadelphia Opera Company, after a successful operatic tour of Australia with Nellie Melba. The Chicago critics have showered praise upon her. Soon, in the Tuesday night visits from Philadelphia to our Opera House by Mr. Dippel's company, we shall have the privilege of hearing her again ourselves.

Anne Bramhall's third Tuesday salon at the Plaza yesterday afternoon was largely attended. The soloists were Narmara Toye, soprano, the Countess Luisa d'Alexandrovsky, pianist, and Albert Spalding, violinist. Each was warmly greeted and applauded.

Kubelik Arrives To-Day. Jan Kubelik, the violinist, will arrive in New York to-day to begin rehearsals with Walter Damrosch for his second concert at the Hippodrome Sunday night. The violinist's injured fingers have recovered. He denies that he is to retire immediately from the concert stage, having only recently signed a contract for a twenty weeks' tour of the United States.
